Illinois State Archives Centennial (1921-2021)

In June 2021, the Illinois State Archives will celebrate 100 years as an Illinois government agency. In anticipation of the centennial celebration, For the Record will feature past and current photographs of the various departments of the Archives. In this issue, we highlight our Reference/Operations Department. This department accessioned state government records, maintains those records, and provides reference service to the public, government officials and scholars.

From territorial days, the Illinois Secretary of State’s constitutional duty was to “keep a fair register of the official acts of the Governor.” In 1873, the Secretary of State’s office created the Archives and Indexes Division to collect, arrange and index records of the Secretary of State’s office and the General Assembly. However, the division focused more on publishing laws and legislative journals than on developing as an archival unit, and as a result, Archives was dropped from the department’s title.

On June 20, 1921, the General Assembly established the Illinois State Archives, a state agency that is administered by the Secretary of State. The Illinois State Archives’ mission is to preserve and provide access to state government records. This includes managing the archival holdings of the State of Illinois. The Illinois State Archives is the official repository for state records and is responsible for preserving, maintaining, indexing, and providing access to those records.

In 2019, the Illinois State Archives launched the Illinois State Historical Records Advisory Board (ISH-RAB) to support the development of state historical records programs. The ISH-RAB provides funding for archival projects that enhance online presence and access to Illinois records. The ISH-RAB is administered by the Illinois State Historical Records Advisory Board (ISH-RAB) and is funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC).
